

COVID-19 AND YOUR MENTAL HEALTH

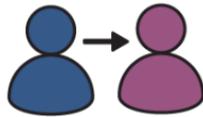

While we are familiar with viruses like the common cold and the flu, the coronavirus (COVID-19) is new and presents a situation that none of us could have imagined a few short months ago. The fact that it is extremely contagious has resulted in business closures, social distancing, and quarantine measures which have disrupted our daily lives. It is more important now than ever to pay attention to mental health during this time of isolation and uncertainty.

YOUR CONCERNS ARE VALID

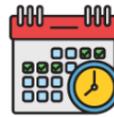

There are many reasons that you might be concerned or worried about COVID-19. Some of the most common are:

Getting sick

Passing the virus onto others, especially those that are high-risk

Adjusting to a new reality for an uncertain amount of time

Taking care of and supporting your family

Concern about the health of your friends and family

Financial stress

Not being able connect with friends and family the way you're used to

Shortages of certain common supplies

SIGNS OF ANXIETY

It is normal to be worried and stressed during times of crisis. While worry is a part of anxiety, people with anxiety tend to experience more exaggerated feelings of worry and tension. Some common symptoms include:

Uncontrollable worry or dread

Stomach and digestion problems

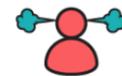

Trouble with concentration, memory, or thinking clearly

Increased heart rate

Changes in energy and difficulty sleeping

Irritability and/or restlessness

In extreme cases of anxiety, people may experience a panic attack. Panic attacks are often mistaken for heart attacks at first, but usually go away when people are able to talk to someone else to calm their fears and practice deep breathing.

MANAGING ANXIETY

There are small things that everyone can do while practicing social distancing or self-quarantine to help reduce the amount of anxiety they are experiencing.

Ask someone to be your support buddy. Call, text, or video chat as needed.

Exercise at home

Use resources like online support groups or the Crisis Text Line (Text MHA to 741741)

Set boundaries with your phone

Use a mindfulness or meditation app

Set a timer for every hour to get up and stretch or take a walk

Create a new routine

Take 10 deep breaths when you feel stressed

WHEN ANXIETY WON'T LET UP

Crisis Hotlines and Textlines

If you are in crisis or or thinking about suicide, get connected to a local crisis center and get in touch with someone immediately.
